Imagine a technology initiative that IT and user managers can get excited about. Imagine a technology initiative that actually delivers value from your existing Information systems...Finally—after 40 years of building, buying, and managing systems that prove difficult to improve, reuse, or leverage with new processes—companies can get excited about what lies ahead. Service Oriented Architecture is the latest IT industry buzzword. But what does it really mean? And most importantly, how can it help me?

At eAlliance we understand that SOA may be difficult to put your arms around. Its promises may be a little hard to believe—and most importantly the tune may sound like one you have already heard.

However, that's not the case. It really does deliver and we have proven it by implementing solutions at some of America's leading companies.

We realize the capital funding race within every organization can be a challenge. We believe so much in the fundamentals and the simplicity of SOA that we have developed a perfect solution for getting your technology investment approved. The SOA Kit developed exclusively by eAlliance and powered by Oracle, is your pathway to SOA in a no risk and inexpensive manner. Please review the contents of our SOA Kit and contact us at eAlliance to find out how to get your very own.
